

Project Assistant

Martina Carlino

Martina Carlino is a sociologist and social researcher. She is committed to tackling systemic inequality, disadvantage, and abuse through impactful and accurate applied multi-methods research. Her research interests include labour market studies, human and labour rights, modern slavery and labour exploitation, and gender studies. She gained advanced postgraduate knowledge and experience - in and outside academia - in both quantitative and qualitative research methods and has a solid expertise in survey methodology and questionnaire design.