

APECS SWISS NATIONAL COMMITTEE

The Association of Polar Early Career Scientists is an organization that aims to simulate interdisciplinary and international research collaboration on polar and cryospheric sciences. For that purpose, APECS tries to facilitate international and interdisciplinary networking, provide opportunities for professional career development as well as promote education.

APECS is for all young researchers, from undergraduate students to early faculty members, and all other people that are interested to follow what is happening in the Polar regions and the wider cryosphere. Members can build new collaboration, obtain useful advices for theirs project/career, create new working groups, help in educational program and expend their network at social events or conferences, etc.

Our National Committee aims to regroup the scientific community working on polar region and cryosphere related topics in Switzerland and encourage international collaboration and networking.

Our Website shows a list of mentors and professors to whom you can address questions, and a list of events where young scientists can gather, share experiences and ideas. We are also publishing news of scientific projects/findings happening in our country.

<http://apecsswitzerland.wix.com/home>

APECS Swiss National Committee Representatives:

Gindraux Saskia : saskia.gindraux@wsl.ch

Proksch Martin: proksch@slf.ch